

BILLINGS AND DUE DATES FOR CONTINUING STUDIES STUDENTS

Access to Fee Information

You can view your Account Summary by Term in Minerva. The Fall term fees will be accessible in mid-July.

Invoicing of Fees

Fees are assessed on a term-by-term basis.

Electronic billing is the official means of delivering fee statements to all McGill students. Your e-bill includes all charges to your account, including tuition, fees, health insurance, and other charges. The University generally produces e-bills at the beginning of the month and sends an email notification to your official McGill email address stating that your e-bill is available for viewing on Minerva. Charges or payments that occur after the statement date appear on the next month's statement, but you can view them immediately on the Account Summary by Term under the Student Accounts Menu on Minerva (this is the online dynamic account balance view).

Failure to check email on a regular basis in no way warrants the cancellation of interest charges and/or late payment fees. Refer to the Student Accounts website at mcgill.ca/student-accounts for information on payment due dates.

Late Payment Fees

If you have an outstanding balance greater than $100 on your account at the end of October (end of February for the Winter term), you are charged a late payment fee according to the fee schedule found in Other Fees for Continuing Studies Students.

Payment Procedures

Please see the Student Accounts website at mcgill.ca/student-accounts/your-account/payment for the various methods of payment available to students and their guests.
