

GENERAL POLICIES AND INFORMATION

You must inform yourself of University rules and regulations and keep abreast of any changes that may occur. The following sections of this Course Catalogue contain important details needed by you during your studies at McGill and should be periodically consulted, along with other sections and related publications.

Authorization, Acknowledgement, and Consent

When applying for admission to the University, you are bound by and agree to observe all statutes, rules, regulations, and policies at McGill University and the faculty or faculties to which you may be accepted and registered in, including policies contained in the University calendars and related fee documents. Your obligation as a student begins with your registration and ends in accordance with the University's statutes, rules, regulations, and policies.

You should verify all information or statements provided with your application. Incorrect or false information may jeopardize your admission. The University reserves the right to revoke an admission that is granted based on incorrect or false information in an application or supporting documents.
