

POLITICAL SCIENCE

About Political Science

Students wishing to do an honours degree or a major or minor concentration in Political Science should consult a Political Science departmental advisor each year in order to devise a suitable program. Proper selection of courses is required if a student wants to graduate on time.

Procedure for New Students

All new students entering the Political Science program (including minor concentrations) are strongly urged to attend an information meeting scheduled at the end of August; the date and location of the meeting will be posted on the web. Attendance will help students prepare for their session with an advisor. It is the student's responsibility to be in Montreal for the meeting. The Political Science Programs Guide is an important resource for new students; it is essential to read the guide prior to attending the information meeting.

For All Political Science Students

The Political Science Programs Guide is available in the Department as well as on the Political Science website. Students wishing to have courses taken at other universities counted as satisfying program requirements must bring copies of their transcripts and course syllabi to the Director of the Major or Honours program or the Director of Undergraduate Studies. Students are not accepted into the Honours program in Political Science until their second year in Political Science; an exception is made for those in joint honours programs.

As course and personnel changes may have occurred after this publication was prepared, students should not use it to plan their program of studies without first consulting the Department office for updated information.

Available Programs

- Political Science Joint Honours Component (B.A.) (36 credits)
- Political Science Major Concentration (B.A.) (36 credits)
- Political Science Minor Concentration (B.A.) (18 credits)

Location

Faculty of Arts
Department of Political Science
Stephen Leacock Building, 4th Floor
855 Sherbrooke Street West
Montreal QC H3A 2T7
Website: mcgill.ca/politicalscience